Biography

Dr Angeliki Stavropoulou is a Scientific Project Manager at the International Life Sciences Institute, Europe (ILSI Europe) in Brussels, BE. Her scientific portfolio includes the Microbiological Food Safety (MFS), Food Allergy (FA) and New Approaches to Chemical Risk Assessment of Food and Food Ingredients (CRA) Task Forces. She holds a MSc in Food Science and Human Nutrition from the Agricultural University of Athens (AUA, GR) with specialization in food microbiology and a PhD in Bioengineering Sciences from the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (VUB, BE). Her PhD research was focused on meat fermentation and the development of staphylococcal starter cultures for fermented meat products.